

[Title of Presentation/Paper/Poster/Session]

[List all authors and their affiliation (no acronyms please)]

[Insert your abstract here. Word count limit = 150 words per JONA style guide]

See example below:

Inclusive Partnerships in Anthropology: A Plurality of Voices

Jessica Mayhew (Central Washington University), J. Hope Amason (Central Washington University), Patrick McCutcheon (Central Washington University), Rodrigo Renteria-Valencia (Central Washington University), Patrick Lubinski (Central Washington University)

As a crossroad in the Pacific Northwest, central Washington represents a complex mosaic of voices; voices that we, as anthropologists, are interested in listening to, partnering with, learning from, and understanding. Yet at times, when immersed in the daily demands of our profession, we can mistakenly take these voices for granted – or worse, we become oblivious to their existence. To challenge such tendencies and reiterate the intentional inclusivity that should characterize anthropological practice, the 73rd NWAC's theme will focus on the importance of forming and celebrating inclusive partnerships with those who reside in our areas of research.